

Meet Vanna

Vanna was 13 years old when she developed debilitating headaches. An MRI revealed that the spunky, social butterfly had brain cancer. Suddenly, Vanna's life revolved around an intensive and demanding treatment schedule that included brain surgery, radiation and chemotherapy.

In fact, Vanna was still on therapy when she arrived in Aspen for the 2017 Aspen Winter Games – not that you would ever know it! Vanna made the most of every day, from ski-biking the mountain, to snowmobiling for the first time at T Lazy 7 Ranch, to even showing off some funky dance moves at the Disco Party.

We loved watching Vanna overcome her limitations, both on and off the mountain. Vanna realized that her illness will not hold her back from achieving whatever she sets her mind to, and she will carry that lesson with her throughout the rest of her cancer journey.

Thank you for giving Vanna the gift of hope!

Learn more about the impact you've made!
www.ShiningStarsFoundation.org

